

a true love relationship promise set from you to you <3

I promise to believe in the dreams in your heart and to support you while you make them real.

I promise to be fair and trust that you're doing the best you can and to grow with you through deeper understandings of life, god, yourself, and everything else.

I promise to never criticize you or wish, aloud or quietly, that you would be other than you are.

I promise to keep my voice about little and big stuff.

I promise to stay true to my heart so that I feel good about who I am and what I'm doing.

I promise to be open to life and living and to honor and be grateful for all of it while I'm here, no matter what.

I promise to let you be you, and to give those expressions wings as they evolve higher.

I promise to stand for you regardless of the weather.

I promise to lean in rather than shut down or tap out when there's stuff.

I promise to honor and respect all of you.

I promise to take care of my energy, spirit, body, heart, people, and mind and anything else that comes into my reach.

I promise to be real.

I promise, when in my power, to create environments conducive to peace and joy, excitement and creativity.

I promise to respect what you've built, have, and are.

I promise to share my world with others who add positively.

I promise to empower you and not act from a selfish, insecure place.

I promise to be courageous and strong in support of your heart and life force.

I promise faithfulness and loyalty in all ways imaginable to your well-being.